DETAILED ACTION

Drawings

1. Figures 5 and 6 should be designated by a legend such as --Prior Art-- because only that which is old is illustrated. See MPEP § 608.02(g). A proposed drawing correction or corrected drawings are required in reply to the Office action to avoid abandonment of the application. The objection to the drawings will not be held in abeyance.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

As per claims 1, 4 and 5, the limitation "a control unit informing the outside of the result of monitoring of each section" render the claim indefinite. IT is not clear what the applicant meant by "the outside" and "each section". Furthermore, there is no antecedent basis for such limitations in the claims.

4. The following art rejection will be made as best understood by the Examiner in light of the above 35 USC 112 rejections.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 2836

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over AAPA in view of Linde (US patent 5,745,670).

As per claims 1, 4 and 5, AAPA (Figure 5) teaches all the limitations except the control unit being also powered by the control power supply unit of another power supply unit. However, Linde teaches a power supply device comprising a plurality of power supply units (12, 12',...) parallel connected, wherein each power supply unit comprises a control unit (30) receiving power from an internal supply (12) and from the internal supplies of other power supply units through a power bus (Figure 3, col.; 5, line 13).

It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the teachings of AAPA with the teachings of Linde such that the control unit is also powered by the control power supply unit of another power supply unit for the purpose of enabling the control units to function independent of the operational condition of the internal supply.

As per claim 2, Linde teaches the control unit receiving inputted controlling voltage supply but does not specifically disclose a converting unit for outputting said received voltage to said control unit. However, the Examiner takes official notice that Linde's control unit inherently comprises a voltage converting unit that receives the voltage from line (24) and supplies a constant controlling voltage supply (DC) to the logic controlling gates (Figure 3).

Art Unit: 2836

As per claim 3, the combination of AAPA (Figure 5) in view of Linde teaches providing rush current prevention circuits (14) and (16) in the downstream side of the main power supply unit and the control power supply unit respectively for preventing a rush current from flowing into the power units. Furthermore, AAPA (Figure 6) teaches that rush current prevention circuit (42) could be provided downstream the control unit for preventing a rush current from flowing into the control unit. Thus, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide all of said rush current prevention circuits for the purpose of completely isolating the power supply units from inrush currents that could damage the power supply units.

7. Art of general nature relating to power supply parallel redundancy has been cited for applicant's review.
